

Everything is a Mirror

There can be no vision without reflection. Feedback generates information. Information is discernible difference. There is no Cause A not caused by Cause x . Isn't that a mirror?

The question is not clear enough, but can't be alone. Reflect, then you'll see.

What you find, you will have put there. And when one day you are not locked in, come at it again quickly, from some other angle, hopeful you'll catch it unawares. You won't. You'll be there before you, waiting, reflecting. Will you then see seeing for what it is?